to the chapter, generously came up with 28 sample logos which the Board of Directors narrowed down to three. We're now putting these out to the membership for review and to give members a chance to submit their own logos for consideration. Look for details later in this newsletter.

Reno, Reno, Reno. We have quite the Reno Air Race contingent: IAC 38 members Jacquie Warda is flying for her second year, Marilyn Dash completed "Rookie School" is entered for her first year, and seasoned competitor Jeff Lo is up for what must be close to his seventh year of air racing. Other local aerobatic names everyone will recognize are: Mike Davis, Bob Blackwood and Cris Ferguson. Go on up and give them your support.

November is the most important meeting of the year. It is the official Annual Meeting of the Board of Directors and also the Chapter Elections of Officers and Board Members. Darren Pleasance is selecting a fun location to host the meeting from so we will definitely be having a good time. If you come to only one chapter meeting this year – make this the one.

Wow. We're two-thirds of the way through the year already and we are a long way from coasting. For those who are still eager to compete, there are a few late season competitions left. Our annual Young Eagles program headed up by Terry Ridgeway culminates this September 27th at Tracy Airport. This is the Chapter's final effort to help the EAA achieve their goal of 1 million YE flights in celebration of the Centennial of Flight. Please help us by coming out to Tracy to give rides, be a good will ambassador or just to ground assist. This also coincides with Tracy's Airport Appreciation Day. They have indicated that it would be nice if we used the box that day and positioned the aircraft for static display between flights. Dave Walkup has scheduled a Chapter event critique day and Rich Perkins has donated a shade tent for us to base out of. When people aren't flying in the box we can park the aircraft near the tent. Basically business as usual. The chapter can provide refreshments as well as IAC literature to interested airport visitors. Thank you all for your time and efforts. Write it on your calendars and come out.

We're redesigning our logo! While most members like elements in our existing logo, it is generally agreed that the execution could be improved. Earlier this year Dick Rihn offered to ask a Graphic Designer friend, Tia Stoller, to put together some ideas. Tia, as a donation

This newsletter is your chance to make your voice heard and to share interesting and funny stories. So please, please send me some material. I promise, it will get published. During my four month as the editor, I haven't exactly been bombarded with submissions. You are all unique people and unique people have stories to tell, so why don't you take a couple of hours on a lazy Sunday afternoon. Brew yourself a nice cup of coffee, sit down and write a few lines. It doesn't have to be a big job with pictures and stuff, just something worth sharing. How about it Ben? Write a little story about flying banners all around the Bay Area. Graham, tell us about flying Jets. Jacquie, what's it like flying an airshow with an 8000 feet density altitude? etc.

My main events this month was Pendleton (see article in this newsletter) and Delano. I'm still struggling with the move up to Intermediate. At least I'm improving—I'm now up to 78%, which only gave me a 9th place finish in Delano (out of 10). Those seasoned veterans (You know who you are) are tough competition, which make it that much more of a challenge.

We have a pretty good crowd at Tracy once a month for the chapter critique day. Come out and practice. That's the only way to get better. You owe it to yourself to get critiqued and the more people we have the more everybody will enjoy it.

If you're a chapter member. I'll put your ad in the newsletter. If you have something to sell, like flying instructions, airplanes, parachutes, etc. Let me know.

Lastly, I'll like to thank Darrin Silver for letting me use his Flyin' High comics for this newsletter. He told me he's open for customizing them with names of chapter members, etc.

Yes, it is that time of the month again. Time for the Chapter 38 NEWSLETTER!

WAHOO! The feedback we are getting from the newsletter is tremendous. At least four people read it last month. Which is twice as many as July! We are really gaining an audience!

The month of August was truly forgettable. At least for me.

The Chapter 38 clan showed up enforce to the Pendleton Contest. Impressive showing – and we brought home some WOOD! I'm sure Peter will have the results for you so, keep reading the newsletter for names and numbers.

Delano 2003 Contest News

I have just returned from the Delano Contest. And yes, "she" was there and yes, "she" hasn't changed. I believe she made Gil Tellier cry when he didn't have all of his paperwork in order. I wasn't there – but that's what I heard. John King ran the contest and guess who was the Volunteer Coordinator/Social Director/Welcoming Committee Extraordinaire!! Come on – GUESS! Where do you think I get all this fabulous gossip, I mean news.

There were no big surprises at Delano. Renaldo Beyer (36) won Sportsperson, Bob Blackwood (85 – chapter, not age) won Intermediate with his 5 figure freestyle, New 38 member Allyson Parker Lauck won Advanced and really flew her butt off and Marta Bohn Meyer won Unlimited. The rumor is she beats her husband – since he took second. Okay, not nearly as funny sober – but at the banquet that was quite the joke.

Ben Freestyle, er Freelove flew the most remarkable Freestyle ever seen in Sportsperson. It had half an outside loop and a roller. A ROLLER? In a DECATH? What will they think of next? He was cheered wildly by the elders and was nearly carried around the banquet on their shoulders. Figuratively.

Airplanes for Sale

There are plenty of airplanes for sale. Malcolm Pond is selling his BEAUTIFUL S2B (since he recently bought Steve Andelin's Edge). Mike and Julie Mangold are still looking for a new owner for their wonderful Dragon Edge. If I can just win lotto.... and Dallas Marckx is selling a wonderful Giles 200 in black. If anyone is interested in finding out more about any of these airplanes, let me know.

Reno Airraces

And one final thing, the rumors are true. Ruby has decided she didn't want to race at Reno this year. We had an "incident" and she will be coming back stronger than ever in a month or so. Please note that I will still be at Reno – I just will be walking around mumbling instead of flying.

In the words of Wayne Handley, There are those than have, those that will and those that will again. You can learn a lot from this guy.

Lastly... Sit down for this one. Allen Silver has offered to host our annual Holiday Party at his house! Mark you calendars now because you absolutely DO NOT want to miss this. December 13th, starting at 6:00pm with dinner at 7:00pm. Potluck. A little history here. Several years ago I started inviting Allen to these because, well, he packs virtually all of our parachutes and I thought a little brown nosing never hurt anybody. At the gift exchange some joker had wrapped a can of Spam. Yup, Allen ended up the proud owner. I found it the next day stuffed into my mailbox so I put it in the pantry trying to think of any Hawaiian friends I could give it to. Same thing happened again the next year. This time Allen didn't even bother to walk out the front door with it. Just left it on the counter. The next day as I was about to put it in the pantry next to its cousin from last year (no Hawaiian friends to be found. But since the half-life of Spam rivals that of Plutonium I figured I'd store it until I met some), I took the time to read the label. For the princely sum of $7 and two proof-of-purchase seals, you could be the proud owner of: 1) a tie-dyed Spam logo t-shirt, 2) a Spam logo baseball cap, 3) other Spam stuff not nearly as exciting as the t-shirt or cap options. Gotta love it. Had to have it. I sat mortified at the next Holiday party as Allen confidently announced that there was no way that the light and pliable contents of the package he chose could possibly be Spam related. It was like watching a train wreck in slow motion as he tore open the wrapping. One of those dreams where you try to scream and nothing comes out. Try to run away, but your leaded feet and legs won't move through the mud puddle quickly enough. I don't know if Allen is a 'don't get mad, get even' kind of guy or a 'forgive and forget' kind of guy.... But I wouldn't miss this one for the world cause either way it's gonna be good.

Probably, the only contest where George W. Bush is listed as 'G. W. Bush - B747' on the result pages... Read on...

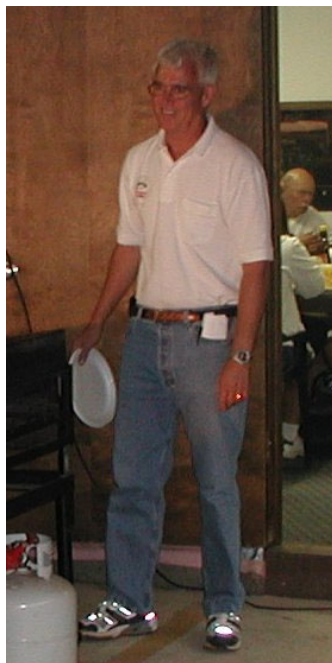

This contest is kind-of far away for a Bay Area guy with a Pitts S1, but everybody had talked highly about it, so I decided to embark on the journey to check it out for myself. I wasn't disappointed.

I got out of Livermore Thursday morning at 10am, exactly 2 minutes after the ATIS was updated and the field went VFR. First stop was Red Bluff, next stop was gonna be Lakeview, but rain, poor visibility, and low ceilings forced me to look around for an alternate after crossing the first mountain ridge. Fortunately, Alturas wasn't too much out of the way. It's amazing how friendly people are at small uncontrolled airports. The guy manning the fuel pump came out and greeted me, offered to put the plane in his hangar, and gave me the keys to his car, so I could get into town for a late lunch. "It only runs on three cylinders, but it'll get you there". After a couple of hours it had cleared a little, so off I went - next stop Burns, Oregon, and finally - after 5 hours of flying - Pendleton. It was 6pm and I had no energy for a practice run, besides happy hour had started.

Everybody got their planes in the big EAA hangar at no extra cost. No frantic running around for hangar space - very nice.

This is the first contest I've been to that starts out with a B-B-Que - instead of ending with one. A Budweiser truck with taps on the side, was conveniently parked next to the grill. Excellent food and good people with funny stories to tell - Corey Middaugh was recapping VW Beetle stories from his not so distant youth!

Friday morning started with homemade pancakes, sausages, and eggs at 6:30am. I love a big meal in the morning, so I was happy as a pig in s.t. A loosely formatted briefing followed at 7:30am. All important points were covered - including the presidential TFR looming just 1 mile north of the box. To avoid being intercepted by two F-15, we were advised to exit the box south - seemed reasonable!

This contest is very laid back. Noone seemed to be in a hurry to get going with the next category. I was a little annoyed in the beginning - it was too laid-back, I thought. However, these guys know what they are doing. They have done it many times before! I gradually realized that everything was well under control and the attitude 'Why hurry - when there's no need to' was definitely the right approach. All 32 competitors got three flights in and everybody had a good time, with lots of time to socialize and chat.

After wrapping up the last Sportsman pilot on Saturday it was time for the Banquet - starting with cocktails on the lawn. Renny Price (the CD) all of a sudden made an appearance on a second story balcony, waving at the crowd in his best Pope imitation. That image went away when he lit up a big stogie, and started throwing out small liquor bottles. The crowd went berserk! He claimed it was coincidental he had gotten the room overlooking the cocktail area... Yeah right! At the banquet - besides excellent food - we were treated to a trophy ceremony, turned comedy act, performed by Renny Price and Norm Willis. Lots of wonderful non-PC stuff. The crowd got rowdy and shouts requesting the trophy winners to remove their clothing were uttered.

Finally - the climax event - the ugly shirt contest - funny, funny, funny. Mark "Magneto" Holmes with a wild shirt/shorts combo was a clear winner. Pulling the shorts up in an atomic wedgie got him well ahead of the field. Vicky pulled off the victory in the female division with a 'Britney Spears - eat my shorts' outfit. Very cool!

Sunday - the anticlimax - it was all over and time to head home. When I got to Burns I ran into an old airport bum with a lazyboy permanently glued to his back. He started talking about this black haired girl flying a bi-plane, with an eagle painted on the side, who came through about a year ago. She must've left quite an impression. Anybody knows who it might have been??? :-). Besides that encounter, the trip home was uneventful.

I can highly recommend this contest, and will definitely go next year. It's more than just another contest!

Young Eagles/Tracy Open House/Critique Day Combo

Do not miss this one.

On September 27th - THREE events will combine at Tracy. Young Eagles (see details later in this newsletter), Tracy Open House (see ad below), and the monthly chapter critique day. If you like getting kids enthused about aviation, by either giving them rides, showing them your airplane, or showing off your latest aerobatic maneuver, this is the day to do it. A lot of spectators will be there with lots of questions, so come out and help out.

Young Eagles Rally

Tracy Airport

Saturday, September 27th, 2003

As I write this, the EAA's Young Eagles web site is reporting a little over 50,000 registrations are needed to achieve the 1 million mark in the Young Eagles program. The hopes are high that this will be reached before the centennial of flight celebrations in December, 2003.

Chapter 38, in conjunction with the City of Tracy, and the Tracy Airport Advisory Committee, give you one last opportunity to participate in this great program. The TAAC are organizing an Airport Open House on Saturday, September 27th, 2003, at the Tracy Airport. I certainly hope everyone can make it that day, as we had a great time last year, when we flew 50 Young Eagles. The airport also organized skydiving demonstrations, as well as other fun and games for the kids and their parents. The turn out was terrific, and they're anticipating even better this year.

Drop me an email, or call me, if you can help out. I'll need ground crew, to help shepherd kids and parents around the ramp, registration staff, to deal with all the paper work and the certificates, and plenty of pilots. All volunteers should arrive, at Tracy Flight Center, by 9:30am. That will give me enough time to get everyone registered and answer any questions about how we will fit in with the rest of the activities of the day.

Chapter 26 - once again - for the 32nd time put on a great contest in Delano. They got every right to the claim: "The tradition goes on". 31 pilots flew, 10 of which were chapter 38 members. The weather was perfect and everybody got all their flights in by 1pm Sunday. Sadly only one Sportsman had done a freestyle - Ben Freelove. However, it's not every day you get to see a half outside loop in a Super Decathlon. Check out his freestyle!

Beaver State Regional 2003 in Pendleton Oregon. Five BIAC38 pilots made the trek from California to the Northeast corner of Oregon, dodging TFRs, rain, and smoke on their way. It was a long trip (5 hours and 4 legs in my case), but worth it. The Pendleton contest is laid-back, and despite the relaxed pace ALL 32 competitors got all three flights in, and we were all served homemade pancakes and sausages for breakfast!
